A Concrete Cottage Designed in the Form of a Greek Cross to Admit More Light

Published in The Craftsman, February, 1907.

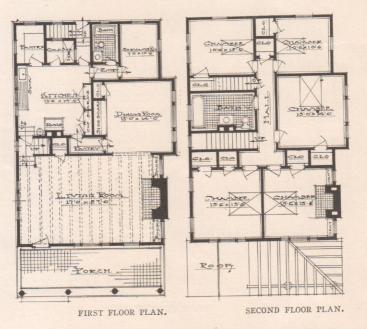

CONCRETE OR HOLLOW CEMENT BLOCK CONSTRUCTION IS SUGGESTED BY THE ILLUSTRATION, BUT THE GENERAL PLAN ADMITS OF THE USE OF BRICK OR STONE, CLAPBOARDS OR SHINGLES IF DESIRED. THE SIDE WALLS ARE HERE BROKEN INTO PANELS BY RAISED BANDS OF CONCRETE. THESE BANDS ARE SMOOTH-SURFACED, BUT THE WALLS ARE MADE VERY ROUGH SHOWING A COARSE TEXTURE THAT IS MOST INTERESTING. THE FOUNDA-TION IS ALSO OF CONCRETE. THE REAR PORCH IS RECESSED AND IS LARGE ENOUGH TO SERVE AS A COMFORTABLE OUTDOOR DINING ROOM.

ESTIMATED COST $6,000 TO $7,000.

A Craftsman Bungalow of Stone and Cement for Country or Suburbs

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

ONE OF THE MOST CRAFTSMANLIKE OF ALL OUR DESIGNS. STONE IS SUGGESTED IF NOT TOO EXPENSIVE. OTHERWISE, THE HOUSE COULD BE BUILT OF CONCRETE, OF CLAPBOARDS OR OF SHINGLES. THE ILLUSTRATION SUGGESTS THE EFFECTIVE USE OF SPLIT FIELD STONE WITH PLASTER AND HALF-TIMBER CONSTRUCTION FOR GABLES. THE SLEEPING PORCH IS A MOST INTERESTING FEATURE.

ESTIMATED COST $8,000 TO $9,000.

CRAFTSMAN HOUSE PLANS

GUSTAV STICKLEY, editor and publisher of The Craftsman, has devoted particular attention to designing a class of houses expressly suited to the great mass of the American people. One or more of these plans have appeared in The Craftsman Magazine each month for some years past, and Mr. Stickley has now published a book called "Craftsman Homes" into which he has collected plans of about 50 houses including Country, Suburban and Town Houses, Bungalows, Cottages and Cabins ranging in cost from $500 to $15,000. Perspective drawings and complete floor plans of 18 of these houses are shown in this folder.

TO PROMOTE THE BUILDING of a better class of houses, an arrangement has been made by which persons interested in the development of suburban and other real estate, builders and others are enabled to place at the disposal of home-builders, plans of Craftsman Houses especially adapted to their requirements.
